NEW WINEMAKER: ANDREW DUFF

Briar Ridge Vineyard proudly welcomes Andrew Duff, who has been appointed Winemaker at Briar Ridge Vineyard succeeding long-serving winemaker Alex Beckett. A local to the Hunter Valley, Andrew brings a wealth of experience and enthusiasm to Briar Ridge, which can be used to not only continue the tradition of producing award-winning Hunter classics and small-batch modern-style wines but also take Briar Ridge Vineyard to new heights.

As the leading Winemaker, Andrew will be responsible for championing the 2024 vintage, continuing Briar Ridge's long-standing history of producing award-winning Hunter classics and small-batch modern-style wines. As one of the Wine Australia, Future Leaders for 2023, Andrew brings to Briar Ridge numerous ideas to further raise the brand's profile and national achievements.

"I have some big shoes to fill as your winemaker and I'm honestly revelling in the opportunity to make wine off such a significantly important vineyard for the Hunter," Andrew notes, "...a vineyard, for me, that sits just below where I got engaged at Bistro Molines!"

Andrew also has his sights set on furthering the winery's bigger goal of working towards a more holistic farming approach, through the exploration of grapes that require less input.

"I'm especially eager to be playing with some interesting grape varietals, such as the Fiano and Albariño. I'm looking forward to following the Briar Ridge ethos of grape exploration, digging deeper into new grapes that can be introduced for a more eco-conscious approach," said Andrew.
